Online safety

As children are likely to be spending more time online at the moment than they normally would, it seems like a good time for a reminder about online safety. The NSPCC has a range of useful information on their website, covering topics such as online games, livestreaming and video apps, internet connected devices, parental controls and social networks – please see

A common tactic of sexual predators is to trick young children into getting changed or undressed on camera by playing a 'game' or issuing a 'challenge', for example, to see how fast they can get changed into different clothes or into a swimming costume. This might happen over video chat or livestreaming app and children often don't even know this has happened. Videos are often taken and then circulated.
